

Increasing Space within your Facility

Have you outgrown your facility? Is space at a premium in your office, manufacturing plant or distribution center? Companies welcome growth in their business but struggle addressing solutions to find additional space for people, inventory or finished goods. New buildings or warehouses are expensive and have extremely long lead times, and finding a new site near your current facility is virtually impossible. Purdy Company can help provide quick and economical solutions for creating space within your existing footprint. From mezzanines and modular buildings to high density storage systems, Purdy Company will help design, procure and install the right solution for your needs. Before you make a long-term expansion commitment, give us a call to look at cost-effective solutions that will help create valuable space.
